

Two arrested for selling fake airline tickets to customers, stealing data

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
NEW DELHI, APRIL 10

POLICE ARRESTED two men who allegedly defrauded several people by selling them non-existent airline tickets and stealing their personal and financial information. Using VOIP (Voice Over Internet Protocol) calls to mask their identities and avoid being traced, the scammers managed to carry out their activities for a significant period, said police.

The accused would create Facebook pages that mimicked legitimate travel agencies offering massive sales on airline tickets. Police said that lured by the low prices, victims would enter their payment details, leading either to direct monetary theft or misuse of their personal data through phishing calls or fake financial service offers.

Police said the matter came to light after a complaint filed via the National Cybercrime Reporting Portal in November 2024 reported financial fraud amounting to Rs 47,681. The victim had responded to a Facebook advertisement offering cheap tickets from Delhi to Toronto, contacted the number provided, and communicated with the accused through WhatsApp before transferring the money, said police. Following an inquiry, an FIR was registered under BNS Section 318(4) (cheating).

"Tracing the calls back to the source was next to impossible...

during our investigation, we found out that the number used for the calls was through VOIP. The number had also been obtained from the dark web," said a police officer.
